

LDSI
21 West 46th Street
Third Floor
New York, NY 10036
+1 212 488 4777
Contact: George M. Thornton

www.lds.com

LDSI
Zetland House
5-25 Scrutton Street
London EC2A 4HJ
+44 (0)207 749 7555
Contact: Larry Morris

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

LDSI EXPANDS GLOBAL COVERAGE – LAUNCHES OPERATIONS IN NEW YORK CITY

LDSI's State of the Art Facilities in Midtown Manhattan Officially Opens for Business

New York, NY & London, England, 7 February 2007 – London-based Legal Document Services International, the world's first truly international provider of a complete range of forensically-sound legal document services, launched its new operations center in the heart of Midtown Manhattan today. The facility is named LDSI New York.

Worldwide Service, Local Touch

Litigation and transactions have rapidly become increasingly complex, crossing borders, languages and currencies. These matters are often handled by a patchwork of legal document suppliers providing their expertise according their geography and specialty, many working together for the very first time – suddenly bound together by a conference call. This method is imprecise and leaves real gaps of accountability. “Gaps of Accountability” are exactly what lawyers are trained to avoid. Who takes full written responsibility for providing a forensically-sound process - whether paper or electronic documents - worldwide?

LDSI has built the world's most forensically-sound infrastructure for managing and processing the information material to litigation and transactions - no matter where and no matter if documents are paper or contained in electronic files.

Many, even most, electronic discovery and litigation support providers operating in New York City, export their client's projects to different parts of the United States and indeed, to other parts of the world for processing. This adds to the lawyer's time and costs and brings unnecessary risks and complexities. LDSI's global customers – many of whom are based in New York City – are thrilled that their global partner for processing and managing critical case and transaction data will now also handle their critical requirements locally. LDSI's unrivalled account management and client services teams, along with our full-service processing center, are now around the corner or up the street.

George M. Thornton, Managing Director of LDSI's US operations commented: "Today is a great day for our team; however, it represents an even better day for LDSI's clients in New York, who in the past, have had to rely upon multiple vendors covering specific geography or services - with only the hope of receiving a consistent level of quality from end to end. Today, LDSI closes the accountability gap, guaranteeing a forensically-sound service delivered locally, via its new solution center in the heart of Midtown Manhattan".

Adds Larry Morris, LDSI Group Chairman & CEO, "With today's opening of this important operational hub in New York City, LDSI has taken a major step toward fulfilling its mission to be the world's most advanced provider of forensically-sound solutions for managing and processing legal information – anywhere in the world. 80% of US law firms with an office in Europe already count on LDSI to handle virtually every imaginable assignment – from the recovery and processing of data from servers and back-up tapes located in remote countries to photocopying and scanning paper documents on or off-site. These customers can now expect the same high standard of service delivered locally as well as internationally. Today is truly a great day for the company".

Through offices and operations in the United States, Europe and the United Kingdom, LDSI provides a complete range of legal document services. Core offerings include data recovery; electronic file processing and eDiscovery; project management; paper capture, output and duplication; hosting services and review tools; staffing, training and skills certification for litigation technology professionals.

LONDON • BRUSSELS • NEW YORK